

ISO 9001 Certification

- ISO The International Standards Organization (ISO) is a worldwide federation of national standards bodies from approximately 130 countries. It is a non-governmental organization established to promote the development of standardization and related activities in the world with a view to facilitating the international exchange of goods and services, and to developing cooperation in the spheres of intellectual, scientific, technological and economic activity. ISO's work results in international agreements that are published as International Standards.
- ISO 9001:2000 ISO 9001: 2000 is an international standard replacing the ISO 9000:1994 series. It is recognized worldwide as the building block for an effective quality management system for all industries.
- Benefits of ISO9001 Building our quality system around this standard ensures that our company is working to a defined set of practices to achieve and enhance customer satisfaction. Compliance helps demonstrate our commitment to quality. Compliance to this standard helps decrease our internal costs by reducing mistakes and improving efficiency with potential to increase overall quality.